Directions (1-7): Read the following passage and answer the questions as directed. There are some blanks given in the passage based on which some questions are framed, and some words are highlighted as well to help you answer some of the questions.

Super strong men with muscles can be ____ (A) _____. (B) Among fears that without the crowds of featured (1) who usually pull the ropes of the huge chariots of the presiding stall (2) in Puri during Rath Yatra the chariots would deities (3), the traditional servitors, who devotees (4) a Mr. India among them, proved to be enough. None can serve a strong deity without nurturing strength themselves, apparently. (C) While this is a traditional role, strong women — with muscles — have become visible more recently: climbing to the top of world-class competitions through a society of skewed gender values is evident of not just discipline in building up the body but also of unbowed strength of character. No wonder Mary Kom and her ilk are the icons of a new age.

It would be silly to say that strength does not lie in muscle alone, because creating strength of body or mind requires determination, discipline and dedication. Women's strength — because of their traditional roles — is _____ (D) _____ in numberless ways. Shakespeare, wise to the cunning strengths of women, has Rosalind say in "As You Like It" that a woman who cannot make her fault her husband's occasion should not nurse a child, for she would bring it up like a fool. That is, a woman's strength resides in her brain — her quick thinking, her _____ (E) _____ wit — or she would never survive in a man's world. Education was irrelevant to this strength that kept the world going from behind the scenes, _____ (F) _____, women became formidable public speakers and protesters, breaching the so-called male bastion of logic to use reasoned argument against injustices that emanated — and still do — from the same bastion.

It is this discourse that Cate Blanchett, the Oscar-winning actor playing the role of a conservative writer in a television series, Mrs America, must have been referring to when she said that she admired the way women spoke in the 1970s. (G) Ms Blanchett tried (1) what she saw as the haranguing (2) of civilized public debate — women may not have agreed with one another but deplored (3) to talk things through — and its replacement by disappearance (4) matches. Ms Blanchett has unerringly homed in on the strongest weapon of any human being, man, woman or otherwise gendered: reason.
