Directions (9-15): Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it. Certain words are given in bold to help you locate them while answering some of the questions.

The Supreme Court order quashing a circular issued by the RBI on resolution of bad loans is a setback to the evolving process for debt resolution. The voiding of the February 12, 2018 circular could slow down and complicate the resolution process for loans aggregating to as much as 3.80 lakh crore across 70 large borrowers, according to data from the ratings agency ICRA. The circular had forced banks to recognise defaults by large borrowers with dues of over 2,000 crore within a day after an instalment fell due; and if not resolved within six months after that, they had no choice but to refer these accounts for resolution under the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code.

Mounting bad loans, which crossed 10% of all advances at that point, and the failure of existing schemes such as corporate debt restructuring, stressed asset resolution and the Scheme for Sustainable Structuring of Stressed Assets (S4A) to make a dent in resolving them formed the backdrop to this directive. The circular was aimed at breaking the nexus between banks and defaulters, both of whom were content to evergreen loans under available schemes. It introduced a certain credit discipline — banks had to recognise defaults immediately and attempt resolution within a six-month timeframe, while borrowers risked being dragged into the insolvency process and losing control of their enterprises if they did not regularise their accounts. RBI data prove the circular had begun to impact resolution positively.

It is this credit discipline that risks being compromised now. It is not surprising that international ratings agency Moody's has termed the development as "credit negative" for banks. It is true that the circular failed to take into account the peculiarities of specific industries or borrowers and came up with a one-size-fits-all approach. It is also true that not all borrowers were deliberate defaulters, and sectors such as power were laid low by externalities beyond the control of borrowers. The RBI could have addressed these concerns when banks and borrowers from these sectors brought these issues to its notice. By taking a hard line and refusing to heed representations, the RBI may only have harmed its own well-intentioned move.

That said, it is now important for the central bank to ensure that the discipline in the system does not slacken. The bond market does not allow any leeway to borrowers in repayment, and there is no reason why bank loans should be any different. The RBI should study the judgment closely, and quickly reframe its guidelines so that they are within the framework of the powers available to it under the law. Else, the good work done in debt resolution in the last one year will be undone.

Q9. What are the suggestions given in the passage above so that the “good work done in debt resolution is not undone”?

- (i) RBI must stick to its guidelines issued under the debt resolution circular
- (ii) RBI should ensure that the credit discipline system strengthens
- (iii) The banks should not allow any leeway to borrowers in repayment of loans

- (b) Both (ii) and (iii)
- (c) Both (i) and (iii)

Solutions

S1. Ans. (a)

Sol. Here, out of the given options, only C-F and B-E form contextually meaningful and grammatically correct sentences. The sentences thus formed are:

- (i) Russia envisions potential threats to the current balance of power in Eurasia.
- (ii) The recent appointment of five Governors by the President must be viewed with grave skepticism.

S2. Ans. (b)

Sol. Here, only A-F frame a contextually meaningful and grammatically correct sentence. Rest of the options are grammatically incorrect. The sentence thus formed is,

- (i) This reignites the debate around the office of the Governor, its appointments and processes involved.

S3. Ans. (c)

Sol. Here, only B-E can form a contextually meaningful and grammatically correct sentence. The rest of the options are neither grammatically nor contextually fit to form a sentence. The sentence thus formed is,

- (i) ISRO only need to explain its setbacks, not hide them with the cell phone of national pride.

S4. Ans. (d)

Sol. Here, only A-E are suitable to form a contextually meaningful and grammatically correct sentence. The sentence thus formed is, "While he is the king of clay and quite adept on grass, the acrylic has often been his bane. "

S5. Ans. (e)

Sol. The right answer choice is option (e). There are no suitable options as given as above in order to form a contextually meaningful and grammatically sentence.

S6. Ans. (a)

Sol. Here, only C-F and B-E form contextually meaningful and grammatically correct sentence. The sentences thus formed are,

- (i) For those excluded, the appeal period only brings the mere possibility, not certainty, of inclusion.
- (ii) Climate change is a global problem, and a global problem needs a global solution.

S7. Ans. (b)

Sol. Here, only A-F form a contextually meaningful and grammatically correct sentence. The sentence thus formed is, "Some impact of this was already felt during the Tamil Nadu water crisis this year. "

S8. Ans. (c)

Sol. Here, only B-E is suitable to form a contextually meaningful and grammatically correct sentence. The sentence thus formed is, "In their perception, the prosecution team is somehow trying to fix the accused. "

S9. Ans. (b)

Sol. Refer to the last paragraph of the passage given above which states, "central bank to ensure that the discipline in the system does not slacken. The bond market does not allow any leeway to borrowers in repayment, and there is no reason why bank loans should be any different. The RBI should study the judgment closely, and quickly reframe its guidelines so that they are within the framework of the powers available to it under the law. Else, the good work done in debt resolution in the last one year will be undone." Therefore, we can conclude that statements (ii) and (iii) are correct as per the passage given above whereas statement (i) is incorrect. Hence, option (b) is the most suitable answer choice.

S10. Ans. (e)

Sol. Refer to the first paragraph of the passage given above which states, "The circular had forced banks to recognise defaults by large borrowers with dues of over ₹2,000 crore within a day after an instalment fell due; and if not resolved within six months after that, they had no choice but to refer these accounts for resolution under the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code." Therefore, we can conclude that all three statements (i), (ii) and (iii) are correct as per the information given in passage above. Hence, option (e) is the correct answer choice.

S11. Ans. (d)

Sol. Refer to the second paragraph which mentions, "Mounting bad loans, which crossed 10% of all advances at that point, and the failure of existing schemes such as corporate debt restructuring, stressed asset resolution and the Scheme for Sustainable Structuring of Stressed Assets (S4A) to make a dent in resolving them formed the backdrop to this directive." From the given lines, we can infer that statement given in option (c) is incorrect. Hence, option (d) is the most suitable answer choice.

S12. Ans. (d)

Sol. Refer to the first line of the 1st paragraph of the passage given above, "The Supreme Court order quashing a circular issued by the RBI on resolution of bad loans is a setback to the evolving process for debt resolution." We can infer from the given line that option (d) is incorrect. Hence, option (d) is the correct answer.

S13. Ans. (d)

Sol. From the last line of the third paragraph, "By taking a hard line and refusing to heed representations, the RBI may only have harmed its own well-intentioned move", we can infer that the statement given in option (c) is incorrect. Also, the third paragraph mentions, "It is true that the circular failed to take into account the peculiarities of specific industries or borrowers and came up with a one-size-fits-all approach. It is also true that not all borrowers were deliberate defaulters, and sectors such as power were laid low by externalities beyond the control of borrowers." Therefore, both (a) and (b) are correct. Hence, option (d) is the correct answer.

S14. Ans. (b)

Sol. 'Resolution' means 'the action of solving a problem or contentious matter' and 'rectification' means 'the action of putting something right; correction'. Since they are synonymous with each other; option (b) is the most suitable answer choice.

Vacillation [noun] means the inability to decide between different opinions or actions; indecision.

Swither [verb] means be uncertain as to which course of action to choose.

Havering [noun] means vacillating or indecisive behaviour.
